

I have enjoyed attending Governor's meetings to talk about Science as Head of department and through this I have a good understanding of the structure and procedures of the Governing Body. Having taught in three quite different schools before coming here I have seen a wide variety of ideas of how schools should be governed and run. In addition, my 5 years here have given me an appreciation of Cotswold School traditions and our way of doing things. Living in the village, and having children who one day will attend the school, I am very much invested in the School, its success, and its role in the community.
