Where to go for help on mental health and emotional wellbeing

Where to go for help if you need someone to talk to

Five Ways to Well-being

Experts from all over the world have agreed that there are five ways in which we can all look after our emotional well-being.

Connect – with the people around you. Friends, family, teachers, colleagues and neighbours.

Be active – Walk, run, dance, cycle, play. Physical activity releases endorphins in your brain and makes you feel good.

Take notice – Be aware of the world around you, and of what you are feeling. Being creative is also good for your mental health.

Keep learning – Whether you are in education or not, learning something new can be fun and help you feel more confident.

Give – Do something nice for someone else. Voluntary work can be a good way to meet people and improve confidence, as well as help others.

Healthy
Living and Learning

First published by Gloucestershire Healthy Schools Partnership. March 2005

We are pleased to be able to provide the 2015 edition, Little Red Book of Emotional Wellbeing. Please let us know if you notice any mistakes or omissions.

For further copies ring Health Promotion Resources on 0300 422 6082 based at the Library, Redwood Education Centre on the site of Gloucestershire Royal Hospital; or email Healthpromotion.resources@glos.nhs.uk.

Also available: Gloucestershire's Little Yellow Book for help and advice on Sexual Health.

This book is also available on the GHLL (Gloucestershire Healthy Living and Learning website) www.ghll.org.uk

your health, your choices
www.nhs.uk

Your GP can help with most emotional or mental health needs. Once you are 16 you can choose your own doctor.

Any approach to your doctor will be treated in confidence even if you are under 16, but if you are worried about this, check it out first.

Most secondary schools have a weekly school nurse drop-in where you can talk in confidence about any health issues. Ask at the office when your school drop-in runs.

If you want to talk to someone else, this book has the names, addresses, telephone numbers and websites of other agencies who can help.

Some of the helplines are free and this is made clear. Otherwise, you will pay the appropriate rate depending on time of day and distance.

You may find the phone is only answered at certain times, or you may get an answerphone.

10 Basic Skills for Looking After Yourself:

- 1 Be good to yourself – Consider how you would like to be treated.
- 2 Believe in yourself – You don't have to have everyone else's approval.
- 3 Learn to relax – Time spent unwinding is time very well spent.
- 4 Eat a balanced diet – Remember what you eat will affect how you feel.
- 5 Try to do some physical exercise everyday – This will release endorphins, the bodies natural "feel good" factor.
- 6 Learn to say NO and not feel guilty – You are not an endless resource for others and need to think about your own reserves.
- 7 You do not have to be perfect, just good enough – It is ok to make mistakes.
- 8 Set yourself achievable goals – Including managing your time effectively to allow time for yourself.
- 9 Identify, face and solve your problems – Whilst accepting you cannot change some things, develop the courage to change the things you can.
- 10 Learn to express your feelings and needs – Whilst recognising they might differ from others.
